Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 10-16 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Applicant argues that claim 10 is merely a combination of claims 1-3, however this is not the case. Applicant has redefined which portion of the device is independently operable as a telephone, and therefore all arguments relating to the original claims are unpersuasive and moot, as the scope of the invention has changed entirely, and these are entirely new and different claims. As new issues have been presented, requiring further search, this action will be made final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10-13 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Snyder et al (US 6,043,626) in view of Ghassabian (WO 98/27702).

Regarding claim 10, Snyder discloses a portable telephone assembly comprising: first (10) and second (15) portions; and wherein the first portion (10) comprises a primary power source (25), is arranged to be detachably connected to the second portion (15) and is independently operable as a portable telephone when detached from the second portion (Col. 3 lines 8-21); the second portion is arranged to be removably attachable to a user (Col. 3 lines 34-

Art Unit: 2682

40), comprises a battery (40) operable to supplement the primary power source when the first and second portions are connected; and a rechargeable battery (40) in the second portion (Col. 3 line 41-56), but does not expressly disclose multiple distributed cells. Ghassabian discloses a battery in a second portion of a two-portion communication device wherein the battery has multiple cells distributed about a second portion. (Page 10 lines 4-18) Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have distributed cells about a second portion to allow more freedom in the shape of the portion allowing for easier attachment, such as a bracelet form.

Regarding claim 11, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone assembly as claimed in claim 10, wherein the second portion is removably attached to a user's wrist. (Ghassabian, page 10 lines 4-18, also see Figures 1 and 2)

Regarding claim 12, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone assembly as claimed in claim 10, wherein charging circuitry is provided to recharge the primary power source from the battery. (Snyder col. 6 line 31-54)

Regarding claim 13, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone assembly as claimed in claim 12, wherein the charging circuitry (battery charging circuitry 450) is disposed in the second portion. (Snyder col. 6 line 31-54)

Regarding claim 16, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone apparatus as claimed in claim 10, comprising charging apparatus (battery charger 410) for recharging the battery. (Snyder col. 6 line 31-54)

Art Unit: 2682

Claims 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Snyder et al (US 6,043,626) in view of Ghassabian (WO 98/27702) further in view of Vega (US 6,275,681).

Regarding claim 14, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone assembly as claimed in claim 12, but does not disclose inductive charging. Vega discloses a radio communication system wherein the charging circuitry comprises a contactless inducting charging apparatus. (Col. 4 lines 4-45) Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use inductive charging, because contacts are subject to wear and corrosion. (Col. 1 lines 32-58)

Regarding claim 15, the combination of Snyder and Ghassabian discloses a portable telephone assembly as claimed in claim 13, but does not disclose inductive charging. Vega discloses a radio communication system wherein the charging circuitry comprises a contactless inducting charging apparatus. (Col. 4 lines 4-45) Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use inductive charging, because contacts are subject to wear and corrosion. (Col. 1 lines 32-58)

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO

Art Unit: 2682

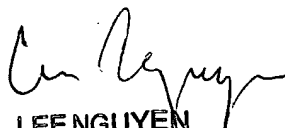

MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
